Dr. Hall Honored By London Authors

Dr. J. Lesslie Hall, Dean of the Department of English, received a letter recently informing him of his election to membership in the Author's Club of London.

"I don't know much about it yet," said Dr. Hall when interviewed by a Flat Hat reporter. "I just received a letter from the Secretary of the Club informing me that I had been elected to membership."

Dr. Hall stated further that membership in the Club is not confined to London Authors alone, and numbers among its members Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, and Thomas Hardy, the latter being the present President of the Club. Dr. Hall does not know of any other Virginians who are members of the Club.

When asked for the reason for his election, Dr. Hall said "I can't imagine why I was elected unless my name was mentioned by Professors from the English Universities who know of my work."

Dr. Hall states that the rooms used by the Club are situated near the House of Parliament on the Thames, and are very beautiful.

Flat Hat Club Meets At Peebles' Home

The Flat Hat Club held its regular bi-weekly meeting Monday night, in the home of P. P. Peebles on Frances Street, at which time the newly elected members, Alva H. Cooke, Theodore Roosevelt Dalton, John Buxton Todd, and Larry C. Green, were initiated into the organization.

The Club will hold its next regular meeting on Monday, November 19, with Messrs. Brauer and Todd, at the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity house, on the Richmond Road.

Social Activities Among Fraternities

The Delta Phi Kappa entertained recently with a "Little Folks" Party at their fraternity rooms.

The Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity entertained with a Hallowe'en Party in the cellar of the Deanery, Monday night, October 29. "Four Owls sang 'Away in the Woods.'"

Card of Thanks

The Flat Hat has received the following card with the request that it be published:

"We wish to express our sincerest appreciation to the Student Body, Football Team and Coaches for their acts of kindness during our recent bereavement, the loss of our husband and father.

"Lesslie W. Parsons and Family."

Big Movie Producer Visits the College

D. W. Griffith, movie producer, who gave the world the "Birth of a Nation," "Broken Blossoms," and other widely known pictures, accompanied by a party of his associates, was a visitor at the College Sunday.

Mr. Griffith and his party were guests of Dr. Chandler at luncheon at the College dining hall, and while here visited points of historical interest around Williamsburg. They also went by automobile to Jamestown and Yorktown.

Mr. Griffith is now engaged in making his biggest picture, "America," and is using "Westover," the James River home of Richard Crane, as a background for some of his important scenes. He and his cast are making their headquarters at the Jefferson Hotel in Richmond, and it is understood that some of his scenes will be shot in the vicinity of Yorktown, and perhaps still others at Jamestown.

Reports from Richmond are to the effect that Mr. Griffith is spending a large part of his time there reading about the history and traditions of the Revolution from books gotten from the State Library.

In addition to his regular cast, Mr. Griffith has enlisted into his service quite a few Richmond "stars," most of whom are members of the Little Theatre League of that city.

Monogram Club To Entertain Visitors

The Monogram Club will be hosts tomorrow night to the University of Delaware football team at a dance to be held in the gymnasium of Jefferson Hall. Music will be furnished by the College Orchestra.

It is the desire of the Club to make this affair as pleasant as possible for our visitors from the North, and all men students who dance are urged to come out and bring their girls.

Theta Anniversary Banquet At Tea Room

A banquet commemorating the seventy-sixth anniversary of the founding of the Theta Delta Chi Fraternity was held in the Pocahontas Tea Room, Wednesday evening, October 31.

Professor R. C. Young, Professor of Physics in the College, acted as toastmaster and short talks were made by members of the active charge and alumni.

Besides the members of the active charge the following alumni were present: Professor R. C. Young, Professor W. T. Hodges, Herbert Chandler, "Susy" Bland, "Bob" Wallace and Charles Duke.

INDIANS ROMP AWAY WITH TIGERS IN SATURDAY'S GAME IN NORFOLK

Indians To Meet Delaware Tomorrow

William and Mary will meet the University of Delaware tomorrow afternoon in the last game to be played on the local field. This contest is the first game to be played between the two institutions since 1916, when the Indians lost to Delaware by a large score.

The Delaware game will be the third inter-sectional contest that the Indians have played this season, and gives promise of being by far the best contest to be witnessed on the home field.

Delaware has an unusually strong aggregation this year, and possesses a long string of decisive victories, having defeated the College of the City of New York, Ursinus and Haverford by a large score, giving every indication of a hard-fought struggle for the Indians, who will face their Northern opponents with the strongest football machine they have ever brought against them.

The main strength of the Delaware team lies in their powerful backfield, which has repeatedly shown its ability to pile up a large score. Garvine, their quarterback, is a fast and clever man and handles the ball in such a manner that it is almost impossible to tell where the ball has gone. In Elliott, Delaware has a fullback who can run, dodge and kick, and in fact do anything that a good back should do. Williams is a fine full back, fast in running plays, and aggressive in the interference. In their recent game with Haverford, the Quaker line almost became dizzy in trying to stop the Delaware backfield in their swift and puzzling shift plays. The Delaware backfield in their swift and puzzling shift plays. The Delaware line runs fine interference, cutting men down well, and at the right time.

Dr. Montgomery's Father Honored

Dr. Walter A. Montgomery was in Raleigh, North Carolina, Tuesday, October 30, at which time an oil painting of his father, the late Judge Walter A. Montgomery, was presented to the Supreme Court of that State. Judge Montgomery was Associate Justice of that Court from 1895 to 1905. He died in 1921.

High tributes were paid the character and attainments of the former jurist by T. T. Hicks, of Henderson, North Carolina, who made the presentation address, and by Chief Justice Walter Clark, of the Supreme Court.

The William and Mary eleven advanced one step nearer the championship of the Class B Colleges of the State last Saturday when they outplayed and outfought the strong Hampden-Sidney "Tigers" for a 20-0 score at the Norfolk ball park. The score does not represent the margin of victory between the two teams as William and Mary received some bad breaks in several instances which kept them from scoring. The Indian backfield used great judgment in picking out holes made by the forwards and exhibited a great offense during the whole game. The victory marked the second for the Indians in as many years.

It was just another case where a well drilled team beat another team with a one man offensive. Ben Smith was the whole show for Hampden-Sidney and the Indians had him marked and threw him for losses many times. Hampden-Sidney showed poor generalship and form throughout the game, although they were fighting fiercely every minute. Twice they held William and Mary for downs near their goal line. Hampden-Sidney secured but one first down and that on a penalty, which shows how the William and Mary line played; while Irwin, Hastings and Cain tore and ripped their way through their opponents for 26 first downs.

There was no doubt in the minds of the spectators after the game about the Indians having a splendid gridiron machine, well coached and with men in backfield who can run, wriggle and buck the line; and a great forward passer in Matsui.

In the first quarter William and Mary carried the ball down the field twice before going over for a touchdown, Irwin taking it over on a pretty end run. The Indians registered six first downs in the second quarter but failed to score. The third quarter found the Indians keeping the ball constantly in the Tiger's territory, but they scored only a safety after a blocked kick. The Indians carried the ball in rapid succession down the field for two touchdowns in the final quarter, Cain carrying the ball over both times.

Irwin, Cain, Hastings, and Charles all showed their power in these drives, responding every time they were called upon with vicious and telling drives. Jordan and House also played a great game, although the entire line did excellent work and much of the backfield's success is due to their opening up holes. Charles, starting his first game this year at quarterback, showed good judgment running the team.

The Tigers did not appear dangerous until near the end of the game after William and Mary substitutes had gone in. However, the substitutes braced up and prevented their scoring. They were continually on

Brief History of Old Williamsburg

The early settlements, in the neighborhood of Williamsburg, were made along the James and York Rivers, before the higher land, midway between the two rivers was occupied. Dr. John Pott was one of the earliest settlers near Williamsburg. In 1632, he received a grant of 1200 acres at the head of Archers Hope Creek under the encouragement of Pott and others. Palisades, six miles in length, were built from Queen's Creek to Archers Hope Creek, crossing the ridge of land on which Williamsburg is now built. Near this palisade, upon the ridge, the settlement was known as Middle Plantation. This ridge became known as one of the most healthful places on the Peninsula, being well drained, and free from mosquitoes and malaria, and supplied with numerous springs of pure water.

In Dr. Tyler's exhaustive work on Williamsburg, from which most of the facts of this article are taken, he states that in 1639 Middle Plantation was commanded by Lieutenant Richard Popeley. In 1646 the place was either renewed, or a new one built near it under the charge of Captain Robert Higginson.

Among the early residents of Middle Plantation were the following: John Clarke, or Clark, Edward and George Wyatt, nephews of Sir Francis Wyatt, Stephen Hamlin, who lived at the head of Queen's Creek, one George Lake at the head of Archers Hope Creek. Henry Tyler, ancestor of President John Tyler, patented 254 acres, including the present site of the Matthey School. In 1643, Richard Kempe patented 4332 acres on both sides of Archers Hope Creek, including the tract known then and now as Rich Neck. Other residents were Peter Efford, Otto Thorpe, Col. John Page, and James Bray.

Middle Plantation was a place of much importance, from the earliest days, due to the fact that the only road up the Peninsula passed through it. This road was known as the horse-path, and undoubtedly followed the route of the Indian path. Its healthfulness and central location were recognized by Governor Francis Nicholson, who in 1698, after destruction of the State House in Jamestown, made Middle Plantation the seat of the government. His action was approved by the Assembly, which gave as its reason for the removal, that it "had been found by constant experience to be healthy and agreeable to the constitution of the inhabitants of this, his Majesty's colony, and dominion having the natural advantages of a serene and temperate air, dry and champagne land, and plentifully stored with wholesome springs and the convenience of two navigable and pleasant creeks that run out of James and York Rivers necessary for supplying the place with provisions and other things of necessity."

Upon location of the capitol, the name was changed to Williamsburg. The first survey, which laid off 220 acres for the town, was made by Theodorick Bland. A handsome brick capitol building was planned, but it was not occupied by the General Assembly until 1705. In 1693 a charter had been granted to William and Mary College, and in 1694, the central building, the foundation and some of the walls which still exist in the present building, was begun. The College building was occupied by the General Assembly until the capitol was finished. In 1705, the College building was partially destroyed by fire. It was rebuilt, but not completed for several years thereafter. The building erected on the ruins of the old, was occupied continuously until 1862, when it was burned. Another building was built at once, but this was destroyed by fire in 1862, by Federal soldiers, for which the United States Government afterwards reimbursed the College. Upon the ruins of this, the present building was erected, after the close of the War Between the States.

In 1710, upon the arrival of Alexander Spotswood as lieutenant governor, Williamsburg took on new life. This man had a vision of a great capital city and he planned accordingly. In his reign of eleven years, he was chiefly instrumental for the building of the brick powder magazine, for the new brick edifice for Bruton Church, for a handsome house for the Governor, called the Palace, and for the rebuilding of the College. From the time of Spotswood until the American Revolution, Williamsburg was the seat of fashion, and of social activity in the colony. Here the politicians, public officials, ministers, lawyers, merchants and planters gathered at times to attend to the business demands of their respective callings. In 1779 the General Assembly decided to move the seat of government to Richmond, for the reason that it was more centrally located.

In the War Between the States, an important engagement, the battle of Williamsburg, was fought between the main part of McClellan's advancing army, and the rear guard of Johnston's. After this battle, the town was in the control of the Federal forces, throughout the war, except one day in September, 1862, when the dash of a Confederate cavalry troop captured the town and held it for a few hours.

After the war perhaps the two most important events were the reopening of the College in 1888, which had been closed since 1881, and the completion of the C. & O. Railroad to the city in 1881. Williamsburg is now entering upon an era of prosperity, due to the rapid growth of the College and to the general interest felt throughout the United States in its historic association.

Some of the points of importance for visitors to see in Williamsburg are the following: The foundation of the old capitol building at the east end of the Duke of Gloucester Street, and the secretary's office to the north of this; the Garrett house facing the capitol square; Bassett Hall and the Peyton Randolph house, on Francis Street, one block from the capitol; the Galt house, on Francis Street; the Mercer house on Francis Street; the site of the Raleigh Tavern, occupied now by Lane and Christian's store; the Paradise house on Duke of Gloucester Street; the Powder Magazine, built in 1715; the James City Court House; the Tucker, Coleman and Peasey houses, facing the court square; Old Bruton Church, built in 1715; the Wythe house adjoining it

SPORTS

BETWEEN THE GOAL POSTS

Last Saturday's score of 20 to 0 does not adequately indicate the difference in the strength of the two teams. The Indians had all the power of attack that could be asked of a team, until they came within the shadow of the Tiger goal; then their superiority seemed to wane. This could possibly be attributed to over-eagerness, the wrong play, or the tightening of the Hampden-Sidney defense, with their back to the wall; but we would hardly choose the latter as the correct answer. The line had a great afternoon of it, repeatedly opening a road through the opposing line and throwing the Tiger backs for heavy losses. Irwin certainly played up to expectations in his home town; while Cain after being taken out in the first quarter on account of a broken nose, went back in the last half and pushed over two touchdowns.

Jordan seems to have a habit of grabbing something out of the air and carrying it over the goal line. It's a mighty good habit, Tommy.

Some football referees have a mighty keen pair of eyes, or else they allow their imaginations to run up and down the field.

The second team again showed its mettle last Saturday. The last seven minutes of play the entire second team was on the field.

The game tomorrow with Delaware should be the best fracas staged here in the last four years. It has been seven years since a William and Mary team met an eleven from Delaware on the gridiron. The last score being somewhat unfavorable to the old W. & M. eleven, the Indians are out for vengeance this time.

It seems that we have at last convinced Coach Frank Dobson that we have a football team here at William and Mary. Coach Dobson is quoted as remarking that "it looks like William and Mary has a powerful football outfit."

After looking over a few scores we find that William and Mary is the only team that has scored on the powerful Syracuse eleven this year, and that the Indians have not been scored on by a College in their class. It would not be a bad idea to continue this zero column for our opponents.

Coach Tucker Jones is getting his track squad in good shape for a few meets this fall. It is expected that the William and Mary distance men will be entered in the cross country meet at Richmond Thanksgiving week. Teams from the large schools of the State usually participate in this meet. Coach Jones would like to have at least fifty more men out for fall training. He guarantees to make some kind of track star out of a man if he sticks with him.

Big Crowd Sees First Girls' Game

Last Thursday night at 7:30 a large number of students turned out for the first girls' basketball game of the season, between the "Old" and "New" girls. The balcony in Jefferson Hall was thronged with both men and women students long before the time for the game, eagerly awaiting the starting whistle.

When the teams appeared on the floor they were greeted with a rousing cheer and after a little warming up the game began. It was apparent from the outset that the "Old Girls" were slated to win, because of their longer practice and greater experience. In the first quarter the "Old Girls" started off with a rush and by the end of the period had scored ten points to their opponents' one.

At the beginning of the second quarter several substitutions were made and at the end of the first half the score stood 18 to 3.

In the third quarter the "Old Girls" scored three more field goals and one foul to the "New Girls'" lone goal and foul. Both teams tightened in the fourth quarter and when the final whistle blew the score was 29 to 7 in favor of the "Old Girls."

The "New Girls" made a more creditable showing than the score seems to indicate, when we take into consideration that they had had only one practice together. As for the "Old Girls," they are fast rounding into mid-season form and their coaches were well pleased with the showing they made.

Captain Wilkins played well for the "New Girls," while the honors were evenly divided among the "Old Girls."

The line-up was as follows:

"Old Girls"	Pos.	"New Girls"
Chase	F.	Somers
Dixon	F.	Edwards
Johnson	C.	Arnold
Townsend	S. C.	Wilkinson(C)
Best	G.	Lavender
F. Gibbons(C)	G.	L. Sinclair

Substitutes: (Old Girls) — Hunt, Ball, E. Gibbons, C. Sinclair, Davis, Moss, Moody. (New Girls) — Carter, Buck, Carder, Hastings.

Referee — Miss Barksdale. Scorer — Virginia Smith. Time keeper — Gibbs. Eight-minute quarters.

Spanish Club Will Be Organized Soon

A Spanish Club, an honorary organization for advanced students of Spanish, is to be organized soon at the College. Membership in the Club will be restricted, and by election only.

The Club, which is being organized under the auspices of the Department of Modern Languages, will have as its purposes to develop interest in Spanish life, to give useful information with regard to Spanish speaking countries as to the opportunities for trade in those countries, to give the students of the language a more intimate knowledge of Spanish life and culture, and to offer greater opportunity for hearing and speaking the language than is possible in the classroom.

The movement is in keeping with an attempt among teachers of modern languages over the country to raise scholarship standards in modern languages, and to stimulate interest in the countries where these languages are spoken.

It is probable that later on such a club will be organized in the French department.

JUDGE FEIDELSON ADDRESSES EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION

The November program meeting of the E. & C. A. was held in the high school auditorium Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock, with a good attendance. Judge C. N. Feidelson, of the College, addressed the audience on the subject of "Peace Movements from time to time of Benjamin Franklin to the present day." Following this address there was an open discussion in which a number of the members took part.

Anniversary of Monroe Doctrine Will Be Celebrated at William and Mary College With Appropriate Exercises

The one hundredth anniversary of the announcement of the Monroe Doctrine will be celebrated at the College of William and Mary with academic exercises and an address by Congressman R. Walton Moore, December 1. President Monroe sent his message to Congress embodying the statement of principles now known as the Monroe Doctrine December 2, 1823. President Monroe was a student at William and Mary at the outbreak of the Revolution and entered the Continental Army in 1776.

President Monroe took his advanced position in behalf of the integrity of the America's after President Jefferson, another William and Mary man, had urged such a course. The British prime minister, Canning, had suggested that the United States and England join in declaring against the transfer of the Spanish colonies to any other power, a proceeding apparently foreshadowed by the formation of the Holy alliance, organized in 1815 among other things to give aid and comfort to the King of Spain in his purpose to re-establish his sovereignty over the independent Latin-American colonies.

Jefferson urged Monroe to accept Canning's proposal, because "by according to her proposition, we detach her from the band, bring her mighty weight into the scale of free government and emancipate a continent at one stroke . . . with her on our side we need not fear the whole world. With her then we should most sedulously cherish a cordial friendship."

Circulating Petition Against Billboards

Several women, who are active workers in the civic affairs of Williamsburg, are around with a petition which will be presented to the city council tonight. The petition will request that honorable body to frame legislation of such a character that any probability of the erection of unsightly billboards in the city at any time in the future will be thrown in the discard. It is said that the petition is being signed by numerous citizens who are opposed to what they term a "disfigurement of the streets" by luridly decorated signboards placed in prominent locations where they will obscure the natural scenery and offend the eye. Another objection some make is that of giving outside concerns the privilege of thus defacing the approaches of the town with large advertising signs without getting anything in return. One citizen has suggested that if boards could be trected along the roads leading into the town which would set forth the historic attractions of the place for the information of visitors, they might be less objectionable.

The action of the council in amending the original ordinance which was prepared by the city attorney to cover the situation has caused more or less speculation on the part of some who are familiar with the terms set forth in that original ordinance. Another citizen was heard to remark: "There is no use in criticizing the council. If the people don't approve of some of the things done by that body, why don't they go to the meetings and say so."

BOOK REVIEWS

seems to have been minded to try his fingering in all keys in "Changeling," for his material is collected from the four, colored corners of the earth. He is as much at home with a jungle book plot of all the animals gathered in parliament at Thebes, as with a ripping melodrama involving the search for a murderess, a ship-wreck, long isolation on an island with a captor turned lover, and final return to civilization and trial. His deftness is as noteworthy in his Samson made contemporary, as in his young suburban literature fretting in search of the literary trick that will make him famous, all the time missing the flowers at his own doorstep. He is as skillful with the Irish-American policeman as with his Manchu prince, physician, and Fifth Avenue merchant-diser. His slender, appreciative New York shop girl is done as romantically as the Changeling woman, made over from crime by sun and rain and South Sea solitude.

To Don Byrne all of life is strange and beautiful and energetic; and there is romance anywhere from the artificial peaks behind the Sphinx to the man-made mountains of Manhattan Island. And if he trips dangerously at times at the ragged rim of melodrama, and oftener, of sentimentality, we can cherish him just the same, because he has the trick of making the past contemporary, and the present as romantic as the past.

Bird To Lecture On Remaking Of Europe

At 8 o'clock on the evenings of Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, November 12, 14, and 16, Mr. Hugh S. Bird, of Washington, D. C., will speak in the College Chapel, his subejct being the Remaking of Europe.

Mr. Bird, who was one of the original Faculty of the College from its reorganization in 1888 until 1904, was the first professor of Education in Virginia, and is remembered by many of the almni of the College as a teacher of force and ability. He has also had wide experience as superintendent and principal in the educational work of the State of Virginia.

Upon the outbreak of the World War, Mr. Bird became executive Secretary in America, for the Polish Relief Fund, touring the country with Paderewski, the great pianist; and, upon the organization of the American Ambulance Service, held the same position with that branch of relief work, again touring the country from coast to coast with the brilliant young soldier, Pachkoff, stepson of the Russian novelist, Maxim Gorky.

Mr. Bird served as Assistant Treasurer of the American Red Cross, under John Skelton Williams, from 1917 to the end of the Wilson administration, and at the close of his term was sent abroad as a member of the Red Cross Commission to investigate conditions in post-war Europe. On two other occasions he was sent to Europe on official business, and spent a total of the alumni of the College as a teacher of eleven months in Paris, Rome, and Constantinople.

Mr. Bird has enjoyed unique advantages for first-hand study and knowledge of European conditions, and can therefore speak with authority of the present day situation and its pressing problems. He comes under the auspices of the College, which, in inaugurating this course of lectures, takes pride in the fact that it is the first series of its kind held in any Southern institution of learning.

Mr. Bird's many friends in the city are cordially invited to hear him.

WHEN YOU'RE AWAY

The weeks fly by on hurried wings
When you are near;
And all the earth with gladness rings
When you are near.
My step is light, and gay, and fleet,
My heart just throbs and skips a beat,
And all of life is—oh, so sweet,
When you are near.

The days go by so slowly, dear,
When you're away;
The dark clouds hang more lowly,
dear,

When you're away.
The nights seem always twice as long,
There's a sad note in each birdling's song,
The whole world seems to be all wrong,
When you're away.

On Higher English

Ducs who are rebelling against "Duc-English" do not realize that they are opposing an imperative foundation which must support them in an advanced study of the English language. Too often college freshmen think that their high school English is sufficient prerequisite for the classics, and wish to plunge immediately into the plays of Shakespeare. Although English 111 and 121 may seem to be somewhat of a repetition they are of a more extensive type than previous courses, and equip the student with a fundamental preparation.

Dr. J. Leslie Hall, Dean of the English Department, warns his classes that "there is no royal road to learning." Those who are pursuing such studies as epic poetry, the study of words, and usages, will readily confirm Dr. Hall's statement. There is a prevailing obsession that all who conquer the barrier of Duc-English are eligible to a similar conquest of the sanctuary of classical literature. The mistaken conception is exposed in the very beginning by requests for analogous criticisms of various translations of "Beowulf." One must have a resourceful supply of cultured experience at his command to satisfactorily interpret the masterpieces of literature.

If it were not for preceding training, or a tangible connecting link between the rudiments of English speech and its most artistic development, the student would justly despair of an intelligent understanding. It is only too true that they who struggle for every result obtain the most comprehensive appreciation. The determination of the students who have studied "Beowulf" in the original has been responsible for a broader interpretation and presentation of the ancient Anglo-Saxon epic. Dr. Hall's translations has received wide recognition as one of the most successful versions yet written.

Ambitious concentration is scarcely conscious of the treadmill it encounters; and faith, combined with a dominating interest will see the incomplete completed. —E. P.

NOTICE!

Several complaints have been registered by students who do not eat at the Dining Hall, and who have not received their Flat Hats. A notice is on the Bulletin Board asking all who do not eat at the Dining Hall to write their names and addresses so that their copies can be mailed to them. The circulation manager cannot be responsible for the delivery of your Flat Hat unless you put your name and address on the paper provided for that purpose on the Main Bulletin Board.

Mrs. Avery To Speak To Edith Baer Club

The November meeting of the Edith Baer Club will be held Tuesday, November 13, in Chapel, immediately after the Y. W. C. A. meeting.

A feature of the meeting will be a talk by Mrs. Ora Hart Avery, State Supervisor of Home Economics Education in Virginia. Mrs. Avery is a woman of charming personality, besides being a good speaker. Her subject will be "Opportunities for Women in Home Economics." Every girl in College who is taking Home Economics, or who is interested in this subject, should come to hear Mrs. Avery.

Besides Mrs. Avery's talk, the regular business meeting of the Club will be held. Plans for the Christmas Sale will be discussed, and the Chairman of the program committees will outline the meetings for the coming year.

All members who have not already done so are urged to pay their dues to the treasurer before the coming meeting.

Following the meeting an informal reception will be held in the Home Economics Apartment at the Practice House. All members, past, present, and prospective, are invited to come and meet Mrs. Avery.

BRIEF HISTORY OF OLD WILLIAMSBURG

on the north; the site of the first theatre in the United States on the Palace Green; the Saunders house, now the home of Hon. O. L. Shewmake; the Audrey house, now the home of Misses Estelle and Cora Smith; the Matty School on the site of the Governor's Palace; the Blair house, opposite the post office; the Brafferton building, erected in 1723 to the southeast of the Main College building; the President's house, built in 1732, to the northeast of the Main building.

On one side of the College campus is the road leading to Jamestown and on the other the road to Richmond. Tazewell Hall, the home of Sir John Randolph, is about one-quarter of a mile south of the Powder Magazine, on the street known as Colonial Extension.

"Tell me, Dave—what kind of a delegation did you fellows get?"
"Can't be beat, Betty; two Finchley fur coats and a Mah Jong."

A Hint Or Two— Or Three

Well, boys, it's about time to get busy. If we remember correctly, the Co-ed dance comes off on November 26, so get out the new Finchley suit and John Ward shoes and the rest will take care of itself. Maybe.

Which reminds us that the girls are going to have another big time soon. Some have adopted the watchful waiting policy and some have decided that the best thing to do is to go right after 'em. Anyway, it's lots of fun to watch 'em, and there's going to be lots more the day that bids are sent out. Reminds us of the Bible verse about "Weeping, wailing, and gnashing of teeth."

* * *

If you will pardon a second allusion to the subject of the Co-ed dance, we have just a little bug which we want to slip in the ear of our dear friend—for convenience we will name him Jack. So Jack, our advice is to stick to one girl and let the other four go—that is, if you want to wear out a little shoe leather on November 26.

FUNDAMENTALS

A little house, a bush, a tree,
A laughing child to play with me.

A task that fills the fragrant days,
But leaving time for prayer and praise.

A garden bright with pink and gold,
Full harvest as the year grows old.

For every day some bookly gain;
For twilight, music's sweet refrain.

A dozen friends with gifts of cheer,
And love, more tender year by year.

With these, and springtime at the door—
What mortal man could ask for more!

—Thomas Curtis Clarke.

Wilson Limericks Amuse Students

"A man keenly interested in all the affairs of the world, with a sparkling sense of humor, a love for his Alma Mater, and a willingness to hear and reply to the views of younger men."

Thus is Woodrow Wilson characterized by three Princeton men who visited him recently in his Washington home. They found the former President in a jovial mood, and he was reminded of several limericks which he recited to the young men with great enthusiasm. He spoke of his son-in-law, Francis B. Sayre, who is in Siam, and recited the following limerick:

"There was a young prince of Siam
Who read from Omar Khayyam.
He said to his Omar: 'You are my Homer,'

And Omar Khayyam said: 'I am.'"

Another, which, according to reports, seemed to please the young Princeton students most, was this one: There was a young girl from Missouri,
Who took her case to the jury.
She said: "Car ninety-three has injured my knee,"

And the jury said: "We're from Missouri."

When his guests departed Mr. Wilson's departing words were: "Give my love to the old College."

the defensive and used bad judgment by not kicking out of danger when the opportunity presented itself. Ben Smith, Tyson, Fuqua, and Sager did the best work for the Tigers.

The feature of the game was in the third quarter when Jordan intercepted a Tiger's forward pass and ran thirty yards through the Hampden-Sidney team for a touchdown. The score was not allowed, due to a William and Mary penalty.

The line-up and summary follows:

W. & M.	Position	H.-S.
Pordan	L. E.	Ott
Elliott	L. T.	Blankenship
Keister	L. G.	Fuqua

L. Todd	R. E.	Hinkle
Charles	Q. B.	Brenaman
Hastings	L. H.	Tyson
Irwin	R. H.	Smith
Cain	F. B.	Harper

Score by quarters:

W. & M.	6	0	2	12	20
H.-S.	0	0	0	0	0

Touchdowns: Irwin, Cain (2.)

First downs: William and Mary, 24; Hampden-Sidney, 2.

Substitutions: William and Mary—Barnes, Matsu, Fitzhugh, Goetz, Hines, Shambaugh, Williams, Alkire, Merrell, Gillmore. Hampden-Sidney—Hurt, Eldridge, Yancy, Adkins, Stover, Brinser.

Officials: Referee—Hodgson, V. P. I. Umpire—Stoney, South Carolina. Head linesman—Barry, Virginia. Time of quarters—15 minutes.

MONDAY and TUESDAY
November 12 and 13

Charlie Chaplin in "The Pilgrim"

The laugh of a life-time for everybody. Not just a comedy, but a classic. Do you think anyone but Chaplin could play this—an escaped convict taking a parson's clothes, a parson's job—and still keep the whole world happy? It was enacted, written and directed by Chaplin.

WEDNESDAY, November 14

Jack Holt in
"A Gentleman of Leisure"

He had to steal a certain girl's photograph within twenty-four hours to win a wager. So he hired a real burglar to help him. And together they stir up a hornet's nest of furious fun and excitement. It is an ideal role for Jack Holt—a perfect blend of galloping comedy and tense drama.

THURSDAY and FRIDAY
November 15 and 16

Gloria Swanson in
"Bluebeard's Eighth Wife"

Here's a picture bound to make your heart quicken to its startling climaxes—your eyes dance to its exquisite gowns and settings—your voice rings loud and long with enthusiastic praise. The story of a modern bluebeard and the girl who put a happy end to his matrimonial marathon.

SATURDAY, November 17

Estelle Taylor in
"A Fool There Was"

"The fool was stripped to his foolish hide (Even as you and I.) Which she might have seen when she threw him aside. (But it isn't on record the lady tried.) So some of him lived and the rest of him died (Even as you and I.) If your vampire says: 'Kiss me my fool,' choose the exit and run, you will learn the reason after seeing this picture at the Palace Theatre next Saturday.

Special Organ Music At Baptist Church

A series of special classical pipe-organ solos by modern composers will be given at the First Baptist Church during the coming winter. The special selection will be given the second Sunday of each month as a prelude to the regular evening service. The object of this series is to acquaint the students of the College with some of the highest types of modern compositions and transcriptions for the organ. Musical appreciation is more often acquired by intimate contact and study than it is by gift of nature.

Music is a refining influence upon every individual if the right sort of music is sought after.

The composition to be played next Sunday, November 11th, is the Largo movement from Dvorak's "The New World Symphony," in which the composer feels he has interpreted and expressed the ideals, passions, hopes, and longings of the people of the new world. In this particular movement the plaintive notes characteristic of the Southern plantation melodies make up the principal theme which is developed to a suitable climax.

Further announcements of compositions to be played on future Sundays will be announced in these columns.

LITTLE SHIPS

No pleasure ever came to me
Like building little ships for sea,
A gutter where the water ran
Was sea enough for any man.
I was the Captain, mate and crew,
The builder and the owner too.

What distant lands we sailed to then
I and my crew of trusty men,
Whenever pirates came in sight
We always fought and won the fight.
For I was Captain, mate and crew,
The gunner and the bo'sun too.

What treasures we would search for, where
Old Captain Kidd had made his lair,
What maidens rescue in distress
With valiant deeds of fearlessness.
I was a boy and had never been told
That life was only real with silver and gold.
